

The broadcast ownership rules were put in place by Congress to ensure that the public, which owns the airwaves, has access to a wide range of news, information, and programming, as well as diverse political views. How else can we make intelligent decisions on and participate fully in the governance of our democratic society?